

New nightclub has people talking

By Lecai Ladroi

Far from the bustle of the Plaza Bechafen, people line up before sundown in the warehouse district for a seat at the Talkative Tilean. The Tilean opened its door three fortnights ago with an offering of natural wine, experimental jazz, and an open-topic debate floor. Damien Marat, originally of Bordeleaux, told the Crier that he's already gone four times, saying "The oratory is enchanting, especially the dialogues on the blood of the nation!" Proprietor Valeria Antonacci says the club fills a niche in city's nightlife: "People need a place to be braindead for a night."

Some citizens worry about the deleterious effects of all-night wine and hypnotizing ideas. A spokesperson for the Sigmarites noted that "jazz and philosophy are on the road away from Heldenhammer." Public health officials are sounding an alarm as well: the City Watch has received multiple reports of dizziness, chills, and fainting from the Tilean's patrons. Continued on page A2.

Asur and Lord

Le'Exile sign concord

By Calethrian Asrai

The Asur of Menlui-Sarath and the Lord Le'Exile have signed a concord of aid and support. The full text of the agreement has not been released, but we believe that the Bretonnians will receive six months of stabling for their horses and a cadre of Shadow Warriors. In return, the Bretonnians will protect Elven Vineyards and give the Asur the right of first refusal on all artifact sales.

RENEGADE CROWNS LOST AT SEA

Artistic rendering of the Ardenburg fleet in the tropical storm. Credit: Scorpaies

Herod Lochsen feared dead

By The Loremaster

Seven days have passed without sign of the Renegade Crown convoy. The fleet set sail from Ardenburg on the Black Gulf more than three months ago, and were last seen by Elven traders returning from Ulthuan. The elves reported that the fleet had lost one ship but were otherwise well prepared for the final leg of their journey.

Two days after the elves saw the convoy, the region was rocked by a tropical storm. While damage was limited in New Felstadt, meteorologists assert that the winds would have been much stronger in the waters the Ardenburgs were sailing. Fearing the worst, a joint Elven-Felstadtish search-and-rescue mission set sail three days ago.

The leader of the convoy was Second Marshall Herod Lochson. An experienced sailor and soldier, Lochson would have been well aware of the oncoming storm, but local navigation experts disagree on what he would have done to avoid it. Most fear that Lochson and his convoy did not survive the storm, although some hope that Lochson would have turned south, avoided the storm, and been forced to land far down the coast in the Skaven infested jungles.

Witch Hunters Eye Scary Dairy

By Capra Justicus

A local dairy farmer by the name of Matteo Bovin has recently come under investigation. Over the past month and half, his productive herd has sired a dozen "calves". Of the 12, only 1 was born without any sort of aberration. The rest left their mothers bearing a wide range of mutations - including things like additional heads, muscular humanoid features, tentacles in place of eyes, two pairs of extra legs, a gibbering alien intellect, metallic skin, a single cyclopean eye, an insectoid exoskeleton, pus-filled buboes, general inside-outness, and a thick mucosal membrane. While local witch hunters and their entourage are launching a thorough investigation, vigilante bands have taken to combing the surrounding area for additional, unreported mutant livestock.

Continued on page A5

SIGMARITE EXPANSION UNDERWAY

By The Loremaster

Every Sunday at the eighth bell, Father Seamus Blackheart's voice booms out over an impromptu pulpit. He's delivering the Sigmarite mass to a flock of colonists and long-time Lustrians. This week's topic is the righteous justice that must be meted out to Sigmar's enemies. A fitting subject for the Arch Lector of the East after he rose to prominence by launching the Purge of the Marienburgs in LC 224.

No one is yet sure why Blackheart and his followers have joined Lord Viggo's St. Laurent's expedition. Imperial records show that roughly 30% of the down payments for the voyage came from Sigmarite accounts, suggesting that finance and profit may be a part of the arrangement. The opportunity to spread the faith to a new continent has also surely pulled Blackheart to Lustria--already, missionaries have descended into the jungle to found Lustria's first Sigmarite Temple.

Exclusive reporting by the Crier indicates something more at play. Our sources tell us that just two months before leaving the Old World, St. Laurent was secretly placed under Sigmarite surveillance for collaborating in witchcraft with the vampire Basilio Antonacci. If this accusation were confirmed by the Tribunal of the Faithful, St. Laurent would face, at a minimum, excommunication. Continued on page A3.

Four devotees of Sigmar depart New Felstadt to plant to Holy Fire at a new temple.

Photocredit: Lars Bürkholz

"We're happy to have religious guidance for this expedition, but there is talk about what they are aiming to get out of this journey. Is this really just about protecting our souls?" - Viktor Grossbach, dock worker in New Felstadt.

FLORA OF THE WEEK

Heliconia

- "False Birds of Paradise"
- The red cups are called bracts and they contain the actual flowers.
- Native to tropical climates, they prefer moist soil and can tolerate sun and partial shade
- They are primarily pollinated by hummingbirds although bats have been observed to pollinate them as well
- Also known as Lobster Claw

MISSING TOAD

RESPONDS TO "KA'MO'FLAG"
IF FOUND, CONTACT KA'LEB YE'LOBSTERIK
IMMEDIATELY

LUSTRIAN CLASSIFIEDS

- Looking for your flock? Join the New Felstadt Birder's Guild on our next excursion! All are welcome, all you need is at least one good eye!
- Missed connection? Lute playing Estalian connected with arm-wrestling Norsesse at the Backtown Cenoté. Meet me on Dienstag at the Plaze Bechafen
- ADVENTURERS WANTED. Combat experience desired but not required. Must provide your own gear. Contact Daniel O'Brien if interested.
- Want to wield the winds of magic? Learn the art of spellcraft from an actual asur archmage! 30 and 60 minute lessons available, stop by at Hex Away the Day on the Rue des Demigriphy